This simple prescription has a threefold effect-it serves to regulate the stomach and bowels, stimulates the action of the kidneys and purifies the blood. By its action on the bowels and kidneys it insures a rapid elimination of all of the waste products of the body, which are more numerous in springtime gist can fill the prescription at a nominal cost or you may obtain the ingredients and mix them at home.

BEING A BOY By Byron Williams.

Yes, being a boy has its triumphs, At least to a man looking back-A glamorous, glorious boyhead! Utopian joys, what a stack! With swimming, and fishing, and trap-

And hunting the Indian wild! Ah! days of Cocagne, lotus laden, When man was a minton-s child! But nevertheless in my dreaming There rankles, my ardor to cool, The thoughts of the mandate which bade Saw wood for the house after school!

The woodpile was ample, and scraggly With slivers and knots! What a pile! Beginning close up to the woodshed, Extending northeastward a mile! Twas high as the cornice of Pisa, And broader by far than a block, While some of the big sticks were When I may no longer be childed tougher.

: II.

Far harder and tougher, than rock! At sunset when all of my fellows Were tempting the big fish to bite, Twas I to that tyrant, the woodpile, To get up the wood for the night! The stoves were red demons of fury That joyed in their gourmandish glee, Each generous crackle and sparkle Portending more sawing for me!

At night, in my little back bedroom, There stalked a grim spectre in white; Its face was the blade of a bucksaw. Its legs were jack-oak! What a sight! Yes, being a boy has its triumphs, At least to a man looking back-But give me the days of my manhood, Though something of boyhood they lack; Give me mature age and its sceptre. CUPID AND THE OWL

By Byron Williams.

An owl sat in a jack-oak tree And blinked his big, round eyes at me; At Rose and me beside the brook, In calm, sequestered, moonlit nook.

"It's only Rose and I." I said, "And you would better go to bed, Instead of rudely staring thus With your big eyes a-down at us." But Mr. Owl, with much ado. He petulantly hooted "Whoo?"

"It's Rose," I said; "just Rose and I; he ide us two there's no one nigh. We're sitting bere upon the brink-And what is more, I do not think It's agtra time to thus pursue Your impelite persistent 'Who?"

The big owl blinked his eyes at me From out the folicge of the tree; Whoo, whoo? Whoo whoo?" h weirdly shrieked. Then acreeched the owl-with bold hal. And then at Rose and me he peeked.

loo, "It's only we," I cried; "we two!" And brashly queried, "Whoo? Whoo? But all he answered was "Whoo Whoo?"

> "Just Rose and I-er-course yo know There's Cupid with his silver bow! But 'tis not thee he seeks to maim-The elf is out for bigger game!"

And then that owl went straight t Shut tight his eyes, tucked in hi He must have felt secure apart

Teothuscan. Among the interesting things found is the skeleton of a man supposed to have been one of the ancient Toltec kings. Beside the human skeleton was that of a tiger, and both were painted red. In addition to these there were also found large quantities of sea shells, obsidian beads, jade and obsidian idols, knives, snakes and polished stone masks representing seroes who lived 3,000 years ago. Many spiral shells were also encountered which had holes drilled through them showing that they had been used as beads. They were beautiful ly polished.

Many copper, bronze, chichehuite and perite objects were also found among the others, showing that the dead man must have been of great importance in his day. Many of these were beautifully polished and of extraordinary size.

FLOWERS KILL FLIES

Sweetpeas, Freshly Picked, Proved Fatal to the Pest

A local druggist has found a new agent for the destruction of flies that for activity and effectiveness discounts anything heretofore offered for that purpose. And not only is it harmless, but it is a thing of which, it is said by romancers, twiner beauty as well. After selling anabout great trees so tightly as to mully thousands of sheets of fly paper of the sticky and poisonous varieties and a ton more or less of insect powder, the new antidote Big, red, spongy noses are not, we all previous methods with him and are told, always due to bibulousness those of his friends who are in the secret.

For several days the druggist, who is a lover of flowers, has had upon his front cases bunches of sweet peas of a variety grown originally in California. Each morning after opening up the store, he has found collected around the base of the It vessel containing the peas quite an accumulation of flies.

For the first day or so he regarded the mass of defunct dipterous insects as an accidental gathering in the neighborhood of the flower, but curlosity prompted him later to watch the conduct of the few flies left in the store. It was observed when the peas were freshly picked that immediately after their being placed in the vases those flies in the vicinity swarmed upon the petals and proceeded to fasten themselves there. Shortly afterward they fell
